

Corvus Group's Regulatory Hosting Business Obtains FCA Authorisation

Corvus Group is delighted to announce that its UK regulatory hosting business ("Corvus Hosting") is now authorised by the FCA.

Obtaining UK regulatory permissions marks a significant step in Corvus Group's journey, enabling Corvus Group to bring a regulatory hosting business to the UK market to compliment its established legal, regulatory and compliance advisory services.

Designed by a team of experienced industry professionals and drawing on their extensive experience in the closed-ended funds and capital raising spaces, the Regulatory Hosting product is a user-friendly and cost-effective alternative to more traditional regulatory hosting/appointed representative arrangements, providing Corvus Group's clients with a solution which allows them to focus on the business of raising capital and arranging deals without being inhibited by the burden of unnecessary compliance red tape.

Corvus Group Co-Founder, Andy Brizell comments: "We're delighted to announce our authorisation by the FCA. With our regulatory permissions in place, Corvus Hosting is very much open for business and we look forward to bringing our Regulatory Hosting services to the UK market."

Corvus Group Co-Founder, James McCarthy adds: "We believe that the Regulatory Hosting product is a true 'value-add' service to our clients. Drawing on our extensive legal, regulatory and compliance experience, we focus on really understanding our client's businesses and how they interact with the FCA perimeter. As a result, we believe our product really differentiates Corvus from other regulatory hosting providers, clearly demonstrating our deep understanding of the regulatory complexities our clients face, as well as our understanding of the practicalities of raising capital and arranging deals in the UK."
